FARM-YARD SCRAPS.

LUCERNE.

This valuable forage plant flourishes on fertile soils in the Southern States, and is worthy of greater attention on the part of those who are in want of a rich and nutritious food for soiling purposes. The following is an extract from the proceedings of the Farmer's Club, New York Institute:

Mr. Curtis read a paper upon the value of this plant for soiling. He says of it: 'It will grow in the same climate and soil with red clover, but needs stronger land, and, being a native of Southern Europe, requires, to perfect itself, more sunshine and warmth. This peculiarity can be remedied to a considerable extent by a rich soil, a warm exposure, and stimulating manures. When furnished with these advantages, its rapid growth, and the amount of lucerne which can be taken off from a small piece of ground is most astonishing. From four to six crops can be cut in one season from the same land. For flesh-forming and nutritive elements, it is superior to red clover, containing 50.7 parts to 41.2 in clover. Like clover, it covers the ground with a dense shade, thus enriching the soil while the roots strike down into the subsoil to the depth of several feet, defying drouth, and leaving the land in admirable condition for subsequent cultivation. Lucerne resembles clover in appearance, with a smaller leaf, and if left to ripen, has a more woody stem. Would not recommend it to take the place of clover for general purposes, but I do most emphatically endorse it for a soiling plant to meet the great want of the dairyman and stock-breeder. For horses it has special merits; not being soft and washy, they are not liable scour on it. It is perennial. Once get it rooted, and with a clean soil it will thrive for years, yielding its excessive burdens of richness. The seed is larger than clover seed, and when ripe and fresh, glossy and yellow—as the sample shows. The crop may be sowed with grain, rye being the best; but it is preferable to sow alone—from eight to ten pounds of seed to the acre.—Maryland Farmer.

PREPARE FOR THE TURNIP CROP.

All experience demonstrates that our section is well adapted to the production of turnips. By careful preparation and high manuring, from 500 to 800 bushels per acre of ruta bagas have been made. Of the other kinds a still greater average production may be secured. Prepare your land before hand by frequent plowings and harrowings, keeping down the weeds and grass so that the land will be in fine order to receive the seed. A good quantity of finely divided barnyard manure, say 20 cart loads to the acre should be broadcast upon the ground and plowed in immediately so that it may become thoroughly incoporated with the soil. The proper time for sowing the seed in this latitude is from the first to the fifteenth of August. Lay off with a bull tongue, furrows two and a half feet apart, and drill in four hundred pounds per acre of some good guano or superphosphate. Cover this with two very slight furrows thrown from each side of the drill and split the bed immediately over the manure and drill in the seed at the rate of one pound per acre. Cover lightly, & when the plants are three inches high, thin to a stand eight inches apart. The subsequent culture and saving the crop we may consider hereafter.

HARROWING AND ROLLING WHEAT.

A writer in the Rural World gives his views and the result of his practice:

In the spring of 1861 my wheat looked forbidding. I put forty acres of it through the process of harrowing, rolling and plastering, with clover sown; the result was twenty-two bushels of wheat to the acre, and an excellent stand of clover. The balance, thirty acres, being new and rough, was passed, the yield being about 14 bushels per acre; but the most marked result I have seen was last year, 1868. I sowed but 18 acres the fall previous, and that on timothy sod. Immediately prior to and after sowing it was very hot and more than half the seed roasted in the ground, giving it a very poor stand, and the field being rolled and exposed, the snow blew off, leaving it exposed all the winter. I went to the field in the spring, with the plow to turn it under, but finding the shoots thrown out let alive, I concluded to resort to the harrow, which I did, applying a double portion as also the roller and plaster. The result was 15 bushelt of No. 1 wheat to the acre, worth two dollars per bushel. From this experience I believe it pays to cultivate wheat in the spring. That it will pay to do so this ensuing spring, there can be no doubt from the evidence before us.

We take the following extracts from a letter published in the Farmer and Star by W. F. Lewis of Edgecomb:

There is a sweetness, and a game flavor, about the meat of the woods hog, that no art can imitate. No Westpholian or sugar cured ham, can equal it.

But why not improve the woods hog? Why prefer the spike nose, 'possum eared slabsided, long legged, long haired to a hog of good form &c.

The hog requires to be supplied with various drugs and medicines—such as salt, ashes, lime, sulphur, copperas, tar, spirits turpentine, charcoal, &c.

By these means I have never lost many hogs from cholera or other disease.

Sophie Bedell's Flirtation.

BY RODA I. ROSELAND.

'No—a thousand times, no! I will never be your wife.''

And to give emphasis to her words, Sophie Bedell stamped her tiny foot, and swept her trailing robe of amber silk disdainfully. Her white brow was momentarily clouded. She toyed with her pretty fan in undisguised annoyance, never glancing once at the face of her handsome cavalier, who looked down lovingly, half in pity, half in anger at the beauty at his side.

'Well Sophie,' he said at last, 'am I to have the answer I have waited on so long?'

'I have just answered you, Mr. Barnett. It is no—never,' she said haughtily.

'Sophie,' he said, passionately, 'is there no hope—can you never be mine?' and the strong man's breast heaved with suppressed emotion.

Her rudy lips curled scornfully, and for the first time she raised her eyes to his face, and withdrew them instantly, saying:

'Please let us return to the room—the air is chilly.'

'Sophie,' he cried, grasping the jeweled hand 'Sophie have you no heart? Think of the future your answer involves. To me it would be a living torture, an endless life of woe to you?''

''What do you care what the futurer is to me,'' she said, haughtily. ''Let us return.''

''Not until I have your answer, Sophie.''

''Mr. Barnett would you detain me against my will? I believe you forgot yourself, sir.''

''Pardon me, Miss Bedell, I had forgotten myself,'' he said, with quiet composure, that contrasted strangely with the fiery outburst of a moment before; ''we will return.''

He offered his arm, and with her lustrous amber silk sweeping after her, they entered the ball room. Sophie Bedell had played with the affections of Clarence Barnett for over a year, and after keeping him too weeks for his answer, she had refused him. He was desperately in love with the little flirt, and her refusal to become his wife was a great blow to him, for he knew very well that she loved him with all the fervor of which her nature was capable of; but she loved her liberty and the pretty compliments and homage she received as reigning belle too well to become his or any man's wife.

Her face was strangely pallid considering she did not love him, and as it was only flirtation, for the time was so tedious, as the same evening she had laughingly remarked to a friend, but at all events I think we are 'diamond cut diamond.''

'Oh! Sophie,' said a young girl coming laughingly up, 'do come and see Mr. Osour play——why,' she broke off suddenly, are you ill?'

For Miss Bedell had fallen back fainting in her seat.

Mr. Barnett arose quietly.

'Shall I assist you to your carriage, Miss Bedell?' he asked, coolly, and bending on her a pair of searching eyes which haunted her for a long time after.

'Yes, please.'

She leaned heavily on his protecting arm. He placed her in her carriage, gave directions to the driver to drive her home, turned on his heel, and entered the ballroom, not even waiting for the carriage to disappear from view.

Sophie Bedell strained her eyes to see the last of the retreating figure, and stretching out her arms, cried:

'Oh, Clarence! Clarence! come to me!'

But the carriage rattled away, and her voice was drowned in the clattering of the wheels.

'It is of no use Sophie; our little money is dwindling down to almost nothing. We are very poor, child, and you must work.'

'I am willing, mother, if only I knew where to obtain employment. We might do dress-making, but the place is so obscure no one would ever find us.'

'I am sure,' said Mrs. Bedell, angrily, 'I don't want any of our old acquaintances to know of our poverty. It's very hard for me at my time of life, Sophie—very hard, indeed. Your father ought to have had more consideration than to reduce his family with his unlucky speculations, and to die when he did, just as his failure was known. If he had lived we would not have fallen so much. He might have acted differently for his family's sake,' she said, complacently.

'Poor papa!' mused Sophie, her mournful gray eyes filled with tears. 'Poor papa, he did it for the best. Still, mother, it is not as bad as you imagine. True, we have not our carriage and do not dress as handsomely as formerly, but we have health, and I can assist in supporting you, mother.'

'Assist, child,' said Mrs. Bedell, uplifting her hands in a tragic way and sinking her voice to a whisper, 'Sophie, our entire support devolves upon you; I have not strength, child, and I am daily sinking; my health and hopes are forever shattered.'

'Dear mamma,' said Sophie, 'I will do all I can. Why not call a physician if you feel so sick?'

'No, Sophie. I can die but once; but while I live I shall not throw away my money. Sophie,' she continued, instantly changing her voice and manner, 'where is Clarence Barnett? He never called, to my knowledge, after the evening he took you to Mrs. De Moi's soiree; I never thought Clarence mercenary, but it appears now that he is so, as he never called since your father's failure was made known. I declare its too bad; all our friends have deserted us. Have you seen Clarence, Sophie?'

Sophie's dusky cheeks turned a deep scarlet, her eyes dropped in confusion, and she stammered in confusion.

'No, mother, we have not met since Mrs. Demoi's ball.'

'Are you concerned in his discontinuing his visits, Sophie? I thought Clarence liked you. Tell me child, did you refuse him?' (She queried sharply.)

'Yes, mother, I refused him at the ball,' she said in a low tone. 'I am sorry now, mother, for I liked Clarence.'

'That is always the way in this world—repentance comes too late. You girls play with a man's affection, and throw him off for another. Child, you are wrong. Clarence is a good, a noble man. I have known him from his boyhood. The Barnetts are very proud, and he will not stoop to the woman he loves. You did very wrong in refusing him, child.'

'I know it, mother,' said Sophie, meekly.

'No, miss, we have no vacancy at present,' said a bluff storekeeper, rubbing together his red hands, and looking in pity at the modest young lady, who timidly inquired if he desired an assistant in his store. 'But may be you'd like to rest. Take a seat ma'am; its cold out, and you look fatigued.'

'Thank you,' said Sophie Bedell; 'I am not very much fatigued, and will not trouble you. Good morning.'

'Good morning, miss.' If you will call in a day or so I might know of a place.'

'Thank you,' and she passed out.

'Nonsense, Charlotte! I can't believe it; Sophie Bedell would never be seen in a dress like that. Ain't it strange how they disappeared!'

'I tell you, Vicie, it is Sophie. Come, let's speak to her.'

'The idea, Charlotte! I am surprised. Why, here's Mr. Marlow.'

'Good morning, ladies,' said the gentleman, and Sophie gave a single look at one of the butterflies who had fluttered about her shrine, and then hurried on. She waited on the corner for the numerous vehicles to pass before she crossed.

'Dear me, girls, just look at that figure!' said a chirruping voice and a bevy of young ladies all dressed in the height of fashion, echood the remark, and began laughing.

'A modern Mother Hubbard,' said an exquisite. 'Miss De Moi, if I were you, I'd cultivate that person's acquaintance, only to borrow her apparel for your next theatrical performance and introduce Dame Crump.'

'Bless me!' said the little lady addressed, and who had not yet spoken, 'girls, you ought to be ashamed; it's no one else but Sophie Bedell. There she has heard you;' for as they approached Sophie had turned an indignant face toward them.

They all came to a dead halt.

'Sophie Bedell! Sophie Bedell!'' passed from every mouth. 'It can't be! At all events, if it is, we are not expected to recognize her in that costume.'

'For shame, girls, for shame! You can do as you please, but Sophie was my dearest friend, and her altered circumstances can make no difference with me; and even in that costume, I will recognize her,' and the little lady moved forward, while Sophie, to escape her former friend, recklessly stepped forth among the moving vehicles.

'Back! back, there!' cried a man, trying to rein in a foaming span of horses.

'Sophie! Sophie!' shrieked Miss De Moi, 'In God's name, come back! You will—'

The sentence was not finished, for just as Sophie turned a white face toward her friend, she stumbled and fell, while a mettled pair of bays passed over her.

Instantly the horses were stopped.

'A woman killed,' passed through the throng. 'No she has only fainted. Make way—give her air!'

The door of the carriage opened, and a gentleman sprang out.

'Some one been injured, I understand,' he said, and looked at the face of marble whiteness to which his eyes seemed riveted.

At last he said, 'This lady is an acquaintance of mine,' and he lifted her into the carriage, and gave orders to stop at the first druggist's.

'Sophie! Sophie!' he moaned.

'I can't help it, mother,' she murmured. 'I refused him. I love him so much, mother, but——'

'Sophie! darling Sophie! I love you!' he cried,

She opened her eyes and looked around.

'Clarence—Mr. Barnett!' she gasped.

'Sophie darling, I love you! Be my wife—will you dearest?'

'Yes, Clarence,' she murmured; 'but I do not deserve such great happiness.'

He pressed her to his bosom, and rained kisses on the upturned face, and their happiness was complete.

Nor was Mrs. Bedell at all averse to her son-in-law, for she once more took possession of her former home, it being purchased and refitted by the wealthy Clarence. She has again her carriage, and now, in her accustomed luxury and comfort, she sighs as she speaks of her departed husband, and says:

'Poor dear! he did it for the best.'

Sophie's wedding was unostentatious, and when her former volatile companions called to pay their respects to the wealthy Mrs. Barnett, Sophie was invariably 'not at home.'

Her friends are now as numerous as before her father's failure, but the most prized of all is Marietta De Moi.

Sophie never trifles with her husband now, for she remembers how her sorrow was caused by ''only a flirtation.'

GENERAL REMARKS.

The completion of the Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta Rail Road has not added as much to our receipts as we anticipated.

It is very important to you that the roads from Augusta, Georgia, to Portsmouth, Va., should be worked as one road. I see no way to accomplish this with the present management. I would therefore respectfully recommend that our Company purchase the road from Charlottee to Augusta if it can be bought at a reasonable price.

Should you thing proper to purchase this road I would advise that the guage be changed to the same as our road. When we run cars without breaking bulk from Augusta to Portsmouth, this would double the income of your road, and enable you in a few years to pay off the bonds that it may be necessary to meet the debt caused by this purchase. Your obedient servant.

W. A. SMITH, Pres't.

LETTER FROM THE GREAT HUNTER.

He Has a Lively Little Fight, in Which he Succeeds in Killing Two Indians.

FORT MCPHERSON, NEBRASKA, June 9 1870.

MY DEAR FRIEND—Last evening I returned from a scout after the Indians. We had a pretty hard fight with them about fifty-five miles from here, on the Red Willow Creek. I came nearer losing my hair there than I have for a long while! I will try and tell you as nearly as possible how it happened.

Four nights ago the Indians made a raid in here and ran off about fifty head of horses and mules. The next morning I found their trail. A company of the Fifth Cavalry was sent out after them. I trailed them within four miles of where they were camped, evidently with the intention of staying till daylight. During the night I went on ahead to the creek, left my horse with the men, took my gun, and on foot went in search of them. I found their camp was right in this village. I went back to the company, brought them up, and at daylight attacked them. They were so taken by surprise that we easily routed them, recapturing all the stock and killing several of the red-skins. I became separated from the company during the fight, and came near going under for my thoughtlessness. Seeing two Indians riding one pony, I took after them, ran close upon them, took good aim with my old ''long Tom,'' just as I would if I was shooting at a buffalo. I fired, and killed their pony. Indians and pony went down in a pile. I dropped my gun and got out my old white-handled pistol. Just as one of them was raising up I was upon him, and fired. I was so close to him that the powder of my pistol burned his face, the bullet entered his head, and killing him instantly. But before I could turn my horse, or stop him, the other Indian had got up, and was shooting at me, wounding my horse. The red villain shot a bullet through my old white hat. I got my horse turned, and charged him, running over him, and knocked him down by the collision with my horse. I turned and killed him before he could get up. It was one of the liveliest little fights I was ever in. I wish you could have been there! I carry all their ornaments and their hair as trophies.

A PREACHER CAUHT IN HIS OWN TRAP.—Once two ministers of the gospel were conversing together on extemporaneous preaching:

''Well,'' said the old divine, waxing warm, ''you are ruining yourself by writing your sermons and reading them off. Your congregation cannot become interested in your preaching, and if you were called upon to preach unexpectedly, unless you could get hold of an old sermon, you would be completely confused.

The young divine used all his eloquence but in vain to convince the old gentleman that the written sermon expressed his own thoughts and feelings, and if called upon he could preach extemporaneously.

''As we are of the same faith,'' said the young minister, ''suppose you try me next Sabbath morning. On ascending the pulpit you can hand me a text from any part of the Bible, and I will convince you that I can preach without looking at the text before I stand up. Likewise I must be allowed the same privilege with you, and see who will make the best of it.

The idea seemed to delight the old gentleman, and it was immediately agreed upon.

The following Sabbath, on mounting the pulpit, his senior brother handed him a slip of paper on which was written: ''And the ass opened his mouth and spake,'' and from which he preached an excellent sermon, chaining the attention of his delighted hearers, and charming his old friends with his eloquence.

In the afternoon the young brother, who was sitting below the pulpit, handed his slip. After raising and opening the Bible, the old man looked sadly around: ''Am I not thine ass?'' Pausing a few moments he ran his fingers through his hair, straightened his collar, blew his nose like the last trumpet, and read aloud: ''Am I not thine ass?'' Another pause, in which a deadly silence reigned. After reading a third time, ''Am I not thine ass?'' he looked over the pulpit at his friend and in a doleful voice said: ''I think I am, brother.''

☞There is a great stir among the Edwards family in consequence of the expiration of a 99 years lease of property in the city of New York, granted by King George to Robt Edwards, which expired and found said Edwards dead. The property is estimated at 82 millions, and Edwards' heirs are now called for—who are they and where are they? A General Edwards of Ga., claims to be one: It rather stikes us that we come in somewhere for a slice of that old man's estate: We well remember that a man named Edwards had a dog once that trotted over our 'daddy's' plantation, and he (Edwards—and may-be the dog too!—) may possibly be related to the old man Edwards.

Mind how you whip a Member of Congress.

Patrick Woods has been sent to jail for three months by the lower house of Congress for chastising Porter (of Va.) one of its members, in the city of Richmond. The House, it seems, construed it that when Pat mauled Porter for his insolence he licked the House, and proceeded to try Patrick without notification. They not only tried him without giving him a chance to confront his accusers, but convicted him and ordered him to be hunted up and jug'd for 3 months. Well, what next? These cowardly fellows a Congress have decided that a M. C. must not be touched by an outsider no matter for what, or they'll put you in jail, and that too without giving you any hearing! Isn't that a pretty business for "the best Government the world ever saw?" What right had Congress to try a case that properly belonged to the Courts of Virginia? And upon what meats do these Cæsars feed that they have grown too great to be whipped like other people for their rascality and impudence? Are they too good or too mean to be chastised? We believe in flogging 'em like other folks, whenever they need kicking.

☞The father of Abner Anderson, editor of the Danville Register, was lately murdered in Pittsylvania county, (Va.,) in his own store at the dead of night. He was an old man in his 75th year and had been in the habit for the last several years of sleeping at night in his store. His skull was mashed with a stick that had been standing in the store for some time. His blood and hair were on the stick. The tracks of the murderer were printed in blood all over the floor, though there were no impressions of the heel part of the foot. The murderer had walked on his toes. It's thought there must have been two engaged in it; it's not thought a negro did it. We are in possession of rumors that promise the most remarkable and shocking developements. It was told us in Danville that an arrest had already been made. There was only twenty-five dollars stolen.

GOV. HOLDEN'S PROCLAMATION.

LINCOLNTON, N. C., June 15, 1870.

Editor Southern Home:

Dear Sir: I write to correct two of the whereases in Gov. Holden's Proclamation.

It is not true that a woman was ravished in Lincoln county by fifteen men: There is not the shadow of foundation for it; not even a rumor.

It is not true that a colored man was tied to a tree and his wife ravished. I enquired to-day of a prominent Republican and two respectable colored men, who say that they have not heard a rumor of such things. I am at a loss to know who has imposed on Governor Holden's credulity.

The other charge as to a negro being shot is true. He was met in the road late at night, by unknown parties, who told him to halt; instead of doing so, he ran, and they fired at him with a pistol, inflicting a wound on his leg. The negro says he knows the parties, but refuses to tell who they are.

Please publish this and correct these impositions, which have been made by designing men, on Gov. Holden.

Very truly, D. SCHENCK.

We publish the above to remark that the man who, at this juncture of affairs, can seek to perpetrate a serious hoax on the Executive, like the above, is a contemptible wretch whose neck deserves a calf-rope; and if Gov. Holden has been, as he seems to be, misinformed in his "whereases," we hope, in every instance he will have the "liar" arrested and sent to the Penitentiary. Governors, like Editors, are sometimes liable to be imposed upon by lying scoundrels who think they see "fun" in their villainy. No doubt but the fellow who told the Governor the above lies was a scalawag who wanted troops sent to Lincolnton to keep the "witches" off him. "Let us have peace," and the Truth with it.

To the Voters of Orange County:

The Convention which met in Hillsboro on the 21st May, 1870 directed the Executive Committee, in case any of the candidates then nominated should not accept, to supply the vacancy. This action clearly proved that that body did not intend, in any event, to be bound by the proceedings of a minority of the delegates on the 7th of May. Being absent from home, when I was appointed Chairman of the Executive Committee, before a meeting could be called R. M. Jones announced himself a candidate for the Senate. Anxious to promote harmony and thinking that he would see from the action of the different conventions of the Conservative party held throughout the State and the conduct of prominent citizens, that it was deemed expedient that we should have candidates, who were not banned by the XIV amendment of the Constitution of the United States, I delayed calling the committee together. Being urged by a large portion of the citizens to prompt action, I convened the committee and submitted the question to them. Learning that my name would be brought forward for the nomination I resigned as chairman and refused to remain a member. Having received the nomination I at first felt it a duty, under the circumstances, not to decline it. Subsequent reflection however has led to a different determination. The absence of some members of the committee and the conduct of others but too clearly indicate the division that might be expected in the county. Unwilling to excite discord and resolved that no action of mine should cause defeat, I have concluded to withdraw my acceptance. At the time I published a card stating that I was not a candidate for the nomination before the Convention, I was anxious that the Convention should not be trammelled in its action, but should have the widest range to select a person of the highest order of talent to meet the difficult and perplexing questions that are now upon us. Besides I hoped that we might expect more lenient action on the part of Congress in relation to the removal of disabilities. These expectations have been disappointed. Congress has proceeded to enforce the XIV amendment by "appropriate Legislation" This law we are bound to obey, and it is mere folly to expect that we can have members seated in our Legislature in defiance of the construction placed upon the amendment by Congress. The fate of Georgia but too clearly shows what that construction is. This amendment prescribes that no person shall hold any office, civil or military, under the United States or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as a member of the Legislature or as an executive or judicial officer of any State to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in rebellion against the same; our constitution prescribes, "The terms of office for Senators and members of the House of Representatives shall commence at the time of their election," A member of the Legislature is certainly recognized as holding an office—under the present Constitution of the State. But as Mr. Jones claims the benefit of a doubt and would if I were a candidate probably receive a sufficient number of votes to effect the election of a Radical from the county, it may be better to have an empty seat in the Senate than to have it filled by a supporter of the present administration. To the many friends who have indicated their preference for me I return my hearty thanks, and deeply feel the mortification that some may experience on account of my action. My past course has I trust been not without some honor to my county nor without some profit to the State. And in declining to enter the present contest I hope I have rendered a service, none the less valuable, from being rarely performed.

Very truly yours,
JOHN W. GRAHAM.

Hillsborough, July 11th, 1870.

To the Voters of Orange—Democrats, Conservatives and Republicans—ALL!

Without consultation with any ring or man, upon being informed that JOHN W. GRAHAM, Esq., had declined to be your candidate for State senator, only from a sense of duty I owe you and myself—I having at all times claimed that the Democrats and Conservatives of Orange are true and loyal men, and that when the time come that it was a choice between loyal and disloyal men for Office in Orange I would be found true as steel to the principles upon which the Government was founded. The day has come when you have to choose between Unionists and peaceable Secessionists. Therefore, I offer myself as an Independent candidate to represent you in the next State Senate.

If the election of R. M. JONES would not cause that old, honored servant of Orange, Capt. JOHN BERRY, to turn over in his grave, and the heads of W. A. GRAHAM and JO. TURNER to hang in shame, then I do not know you, voters of Orange.

Respectfully
Your ob't servant.
HENRY N. BROWN.

Hillsboro' July 12 1870.

For the Recorder.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I see in the last issue of your paper a communication over the signature of 'Pro Bono Publico' which calls for a notice from the undersigned.

The writer says that the time for united action on the part of the conservatives is near at hand. Then I ask in all candor of whom has that party heretofore been composed? The two old parties united—the whigs and democrats. This position I suppose will be admitted. Then I ask why has the old democratic party been ignored in the late County Convention? Could there be no democrat found to fill any place of honor or profit? Could this omission be the result of accident? No, that could not possibly have been the case. It must have been a deliberate, premeditated design on the part of the Old Whig party. Had there been only a few nominations made by the Conventions held then it might have been so; but as there have been 17 nominations and out of that number how many Old Democrats do you suppose there are? Not one! The whole number are old-line whigs! Now this is so very apparent that the blind may see, or a wayfaring man tho' a fool may understand the manipulation of this so-called Conservative party. Now if these two old parties are to remain a unit and present one unbroken front against the Radical party in Orange, is this the way to effect it? I answer no, it is the very reverse. [Here the writer exonerates the democrats from blame in case division in the conservative party defeats in this county, and cites the Judges of the Supreme and Superior courts to show that the old whig party mainly has contributed to the ranks of the Radical party, but we think he sees one side only.—Eds.] * * But who are the candidates for Congress in this district? Two old line whigs! This adds two more nominees, and still no democrat. This is an outrage and an insult to every old democrat in the county, to which they cannot and will not tamely submit.

Pro Bono Publico further says there will be no broken column in the radical ranks. That is a matter with which I have nothing to do; it is not the case with the conservatives; and I think I have the best of reasons for saying his conduct, with others of his old party friends, has brought about this state of affairs. He further says we must unite: How can he without a blush call upon us to unite? And upon whom? Upon the candidates of the old whig party! Then you are called upon to vote for men who will not vote for you! who think you will do to vote but will not do to vote for! * * * He further says the dissatisfaction is confined to office seekers. This is not so, so far as the democrats are concerned, as there was but one democrat brought before the Convention for a seat in the Legislature, and I know of no man in the county more anxious to go to the Legislature than Pro Bono Publico.

VOX POPULI.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The ticket presented by "Farmers" is composed entirely of good men, but the laboring portion of the community would prefer County Commissioners to be residents of Hillsborough, in order to avoid paying mileage, which makes no small item when they have to travel 10, 12 and 16 miles. What is the use of paying 4 and 5 and $6, wedn we can have it done for $3? We would suggest the following ticket:

John U. Kirkland, T. B. Hill, Dr. O. Hooker, P. B. Ruffin and Lemuel Lynch.

LABORER.

To the Citizens of Mecklenburg County.

When the convention of the Conservative party met on the 23d ult., to nominate a County Ticket, I instructed two gentlemen who were delegates to inform the convention that I did not accept the nomination for the Senate, with which my name had been connected for some time previous. This I learn, was done; but nevertheless I was nominated. When the committee waited upon me to inrorm me of the action of the convention, I express again my disinclination to accept, and begged the committee to allow me time for consideration.

Aside from the urgent demands of private business, there was a question as to my eligibility under the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. After thorough examination and consultation with some of the most eminent legal minds in the State, I became satisfied that I was not ineligible to a seat in the Legislature. But in as much as that body had placed a different construction upon the Article, and if elected my right to a seat would be made a matter of contest and wrangling, I have concluded that the public good requires that such a conflict should be avoided. It would be infinitely better that there should be no obstacle whatever to the prompt seating of all our representatives elect, so that, should we have a majority, they might proceed at once to the great work of redeeming our people from the corruption and misrule under which they suffer.

These considerations, in my opinion, demand the subordination of all other and minor objects; and in declining to accept the nomination so kindly and flatteringly tendered me, I feel that I am performing a duty and promoting the real interests of our people. Where there are so many competent and upright citizens, whose eligibility is not disputed, you can have no trouble in securing a candidate.

Regretting greatly that I do not feel at liberty, under all the circumstances, to accept the nomination at your hands, and thanking you most sincerely for the confidence reposed in me, I am fellow-citizens,

Your obliged and obedient servant.

THE GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE
FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics" "Appetizers," "Renovators," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, providing the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

FOR SKIN DISEASES,—Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Copious Discharges of Urine, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, which are the offsprings of Dyspepsia, are cured by these Bitters.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

For full Directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.

THIRTY YEARS

It has lost none of its good name by repeated trials, but continues to occupy a prominent position in every family medicine chest.

It is an External and Internal Remedy. For Summer Complaint, or any other form of bowel disease in children or adults, it is an almost certain cure, and has without doubt, been more successful in curing the various kinds of CHOLERA than any other known remedy, or the most skillful physician. In India, Africa and China, where this dreadful disease is more or less prevalent, the Pain Killer is considered by the natives, as well as European residents in those climates a sure remedy; and while it is a most efficient remedy for pain, it is a perfectly safe medicine, even in unskillful hands. LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

THE JUNIOR EDITOR is still on the tramp, among the farmers in Caswell, at this writing, and had we the power to telegraph him we would invite him home, as our principal "compositor" is too sick to be at his post, and we are kept too busy these hot, lazy days "brushing away the blue-till fly," to do much of anything else.

The probability is the indisposition of Mr. Freeland (our foreman,) will prevent us going to press to-morrow (Wednesday,) in time to meet the mails at night. If so we hope our patrons will excuse the delay, as sickness cannot be helped.

☞ The reader must overlook short comings in this issue. We have not time to notice many things claiming our attention. Will do better next week—God willing.

Tramping through the Country.

A half an hour with the Farmers of Caswell

(BY OUR OWN REPORTER.)

CROPS

Are looking fine in Caswell, though many of the farmers are much in the grass. The prettiest corn you ever saw. The tobacco is very forward on some of the farms and is already in bloom; some of it will have to be cut in August. There is one farm near Yanceyville—James Poteat—we noticed the Tobacco growing here. He used on it two kinds of manure: Stable manure and Peruvian guano. On the hill side manured with Peruvian guano we noticed the tobacco looked dwarfish and spindling; but the major portion of this extensively planted field was beautiful in fine large leaf that promised to make pound plants. This portion of the field was made rich with stable manure. By the way it has been the custom of a great many old planters of the "weed" never to use any other fertilizer than that of home manufacture. For instance the Hightowers who since the war have sold all of their tobacco crops at 18, 20 and 30 dollars around, have never used a finger pinch of Peruvian guano. They make compost heaps.—Early in the fall they rake up all the old leaves and sprinkling lime between the layers they pile them up in pens. Then plough the land 15 inches with a turning plough; and in the spring cross plow it with a shovel plow so as to make the dirt fine. Then they lay off furrows with a shovel plow and open these furrows with a turning plow, plowing so deep as to nearly make a deep ditch. Into these deep furrows they put old leaves and rotten trash still damp from the packing, and then cover them up with a four furrow run by a turning plow. This makes a kind of bed or bank all along the furrows and on this line of bedding they make tobacco hills.—This keeps the hills all moist even during the driest spell of weather and also matures the very finest tobacco. Now, Miss Martha Phelps, an old lady in Halifax, Va., rakes up these old leaves and puts them in the stable stalls, say for about two weeks at a time; then she throws them in a pen and puts in another lot, and so-on. This is said to make the very richest of manure for either tobacco or grain.

THE WHEAT.

There is a good crop of wheat made in Caswell county this year. The "Red Beard" "Lancaster," "Little Red Beard," and Bowden," seem to be the popular varieties. There appears to be found the most SMUT in the Bouton variety. And while we mention smut it reminds us that hardly any two farmers can agree on WHAT SMUT IS.

Mr. Shanks—an old Englishman and a splendid farmer near Leasburg—says he has never had smut in his wheat. He has never used blue stone. Mr. Shanks has a lot that makes twenty bushels to the acre; he generally seeds about three or between three and four pecks to the acre. He will make an average crop of wheat—though it was caught out in this recent wet spell. He don't know what smut is, thinks maybe it's in the grain, may-be in the land. Alex. Fuller near Leasburg will make 1500 bushels of wheat. He seeded the "Red Pennsylvania.' Said nothing about smut. His corn on the ridges is fine; on the bottoms has been overflowed by Hyco. Jasper James on Pea Ridge has 1300 shocks. No smut. He sowed the "Yellow Limas." Sowed on tobacco land. Brock Holden on Pea Ridge seeded five acres. He will make nearly twenty bushels to the acre—so he says. No smut. Brock is a working fellow and a clever one beside; and he's got what the Scriptures say is a good thing—a good wife. Mr. Dameron near Prospect Hill makes an average crop of wheat. Jerre Dixon near Leasburg an average crop. Though his average last year was 3 grains to the mash; this year it is two. Old man Scoggins on the Ridge has made a tolerable good crop. But he says that at the second joint of the stalk the blade is full of water. He has noticed several of the stalks and finds it just so. Never noticed it before, don't know what caused it. Now most of the farmers about Leasburg and the Ridge believe the smut to come from some defect in the seed wheat; though Jerre Dixon agrees with a few of the farmers in our own county that smut comes from old damp and shaded land, particularly, when adjoining old and decayed houses. John Reid on the Yanceyville road from Milton made an average crop of wheat this year. He seeded the "Little Red Wheat." A great many in this section prefer this to any other variety. It is a small grain wheat and has a thin brand. Mr. Reid has had more smut this year than last. He thinks that a north-east rain when the wind blows the bloom off makes the smut—or scab one. On the Robarts Farm on this road an average crop is made. No smut. The "Bouton" wheat. Soaked it in bluestone—always do—never have it. Old Pleasant Chandler once told Mr. Robarts he soaked all his seed wheat in blue stone save one half a bushel. This he planted to itself. Where the wheat come up there was not a sign of smut except from that 1 a bushel that wasn't soaked. He believed smut to come from cracked grains. Mr. Pinchback five miles from Yanceyville—we regard as one of the best farmers in the county. He has made more than an average crop of wheat this year. No smut. Never had any. Always soaked in bluestone. He says nobody ever heard of smut in wheat till machines come in fashion; that so long as they tread and frailed the wheat there was no smut. He believes smut to come from cracked grains from a thrashing machine. And another thing: farmers don't let their wheat get as ripe as it ought to—because not so ripe it makes whiter flour. Mr. Pinchback certainly has a curiosity in the way of a

STACK OF WHEAT.

This is just one of his stacks. Twenty bushels to a stack is a right good pack. But this stack holds a hundred bushels. He used 5 hands to do the hauling and stacking. Three hands on the stack. Two in the wagon throwing out the wheat. The third hand on the stack stays there and carries the outside course around and keeps the heads high enough so as for the water to drain off and allow for the wheat sinking next to the pole. This hand also throws to the two who are stacking while the two in the wagon throw to him. This wheat stack is a monster.

THE CORN.

Everybody has a good crop of corn. Mr. Pinchback's corn is fine. His plan of cultivating is this:

No good crop of corn can be made without a strong team. A man should go to mill for his horses as he would for himself. I keep a hogshead in my cutting room. And always 3 barrels of meal in it—meal—or brand—or offal of some sort. I plow 14 inches deep. When you get through weeding corn and commence plowing it the second time you should drop the guano in the furrow you run next to the corn. The next furrow covers up the guano. This pays better than to put the guano with the corn: for this makes only the stalk; whereas my plan makes the ear.

TOBACCO.

Mr. Pinchback raises good tobacco. He has this year 90 to 100 thousand hills of fine tobacco. He uses Peruvian Guano and Stable Manure. If red land he puts ashes in so as to change the quality of the tobacco.

GAPS IN CHICKENS.

Mr. Shanks—near Leasburg—has a remedy he says never fails. He got it from a correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch many years ago. Just when the chickens are hatched mop the old hen under her wings and all about with a mixture of Kerosene and train oil. The receipt said put it on the little chicken from the top of its head to the tail. But Mrs. Shanks tried this and it killed some of the chickens. So she has ever since been putting it on the hen, and in sheltering her brood of course the little chicks get a benefit. You see this gaps comes from lice on chickens. It even breeds sometimes a half dozen long worms in their throats. The above is a certain remedy and our readers may safely try it.

OATS.

A large and splendid crop of oats. Some say they will not be more than 30 to 50 cts a hundred. Taz Hunt—over the river from Milton—is said to make one hundred thousand pounds of oats. More anon. Time presses us now—will save for another time.

The Old Grier's Church.

(By our own Reporter.)

Grier's Church, in Caswell, that stands just back of Frogsboro', is the oldest sanctuary in the State. An old frame building—built in 1770, or thereabout—and was preached in and worshipped in by two denominations; the Primitive Baptist, and Presbyterians. Old parson Brown—a hard shell, is said to have been the first pastor. Powerful sermons have been preached there by Doctor Phillips, Mr. Pacely, and Mr. Lynch. The last reverend gentleman said in his last sermon in this old church, he wanted to preach one more sermon there before he died. He died before his next appointment. In the graveyard you find a few marble monuments,—some of them of persons who died over a half century ago. There is a large post oak near this church that contains a screech owl nest one hundred years old. Generation after generation of screech owls have been hatched there and many an old man that now totters on his stick has thrown rocks at that old nest when he was a mere shaveling. The old nest is now full of young owls. (How old does an owl get anyhow?) This old tree is hollow down to the ground and its sides are lined thick and black with the excrement of the filthy birds. The church is not preached in now.

YANCEYVILLE.

By our own Correspondent.

Eighty yankee blue coats rank and file arrived in Yanceyville Saturday evening. They came from Baltimore and had been stationed at Fort McHenry. The officer in charge is named Rondy.

THE NEGROES

Held a convention in Yanceyville on Saturday. They made a ticket. Tom Harrison (white) for the Senate. Foster (white) and Cary, (negro,) for the Commons. For Commissioners they nominated T. A. Donoho, (near Milton,) and Henry Phelps, a negro living in Milton, Jerre Poteat, negro in Yanceyville, and another white man whose name we forget. For Sheriff they have nominated Brice Harralson, of Yanceyville. Whether Mr. Donoho or Harralson will consent to run on the Republican ticket is to be seen.—Neither of these gentlemen is radical. Harralson is exceedingly popular in the County and made a gallant confederate soldier; while Mr. Donoho is a gentleman in whom both white and black around Milton have the most entire respect and confidence not only for the sound and substantial conservatism of his judgment in all matters, but for the irreproachable record of his character as a christian and gentleman. It is a weak ticket the rest of it—made up of Cary, the negro, Foster, a white man void of education or legislative ability, and young Harrison, (who's for the Senate) a mere youth who himself must be conscious of his want of fitness for the grave legislation of a State Senator. We think it unfortunate the democrats in Caswell didn't put Mr. Donoho on their ticket—knowing that the Milton Township was not represented at all. If he runs on this ticket he will certainly be voted for by a large class of the best men in the county. We are sorry Mr. Harralson has been set in opposition to Sheriff Griffith, (who Tourgee himself pronounced to us to be the best Sheriff in all his Judicial District.) It will be known whether these gentlemen allow their names to be run.

POOL ON THE WAR PATH.

Senator John Pool is on the war path to find out "who killed Stephens?" He wrote sometime since from Washington to a highly esteemed citizen of Yanceyville in which he said that two of the most prominent men in the county were privy to the murder. In refering to the brothers of Stephens he said it was still a greater reproach on the county when even the brothers of the murdered man were so terrified as to publicly declare guiltless the men they secretly suspected guilty. He also in this letter mocked at the farce of the coroners Jury.

We understood that the foreman of this jury, Mr. Wm. Bowe, wrote in reply a very terse and pointed letter. He told Senator Pool that he didn't "vote to embarrass" the law as he, ("Secesh" Pool,) said he voted during the war "so as to embarrass the Confederacy."

The First Tomatoes.

Dr. Allen Gunn of Yanceyville has been feasting on tomatoes grown in his garden for the past three weeks. The doctor dined us sumptuously on them in his hospitable mansion last Saturday.

The Reason.

A darkey from Roxborough a few days ago assigned to some of the Hillsboroughites the reason why the U. S. Troops were sent to Roxboro': He said they were sent there "to make the boys quit playing marbles on Sundays—that preacher Moore had tried his best to stop it by preaching 'agin' it and he conldn't do it." Now, boys, stop your Sunday sport and let the troops go after the Indians.

By the way, these troops say that it is far more quiet and orderly in North Carolina than in New York State where they came from. They expressed great surprise at not finding the men here all armed with pistols and Bowie knives, and in resistance to the State authorities.

Sam Allen.

We hear that Sam accompanied the troops to Caswell. Can it be possible that Samuel deemed troops essential to his safety? Boys, let Sam alone, and tell the fool to quit telling whaling lies about killing ku klux by running his sword through 'em, &c. Sam's "sword" runs only when it runs with his carcass.

☞ A gentleman from Milton stopped in town a few days since and pronounced the soda at Gattis' the best in the State.

☞ Wm. Lea, a venerable and esteemed citizen of Leasburg, is now in his ninety seventh year. Mr Lea carries on his farm; rides a right young colt that would fling the most of us "boys," shoots squirrels with his shot gun—a long old piece with a flint lock—and frequently walks to town climbing fences and tramping over plowed ground on his way. This is a task that some young men of this age would faint at the mere idea of such a thing.

☞ President Smith of the Central Road is in town. He is a model railroader and no just man can find fault with his management of the North Carolina Central.

Crack, Crack, Crack!
Jingle, jingle, jingle!
Splash, smash, mix and mingle!

It keeps Jerre Nicholas, the elegant saloon keeper in Danville, busy all the day mixing ice toddies and fixing up juleps.*

From a Correspondent.

SOUTH BOSTON.

All's right here. The crops are good. Mr. W. B. Ellison, of Milton, is about to place in operation a huge tobacco warehouse and this will bring money and tobacco to us for Ellison is said to be a tobacco buyer that all the farmers travel after. No news. I suppose you have heard of the death of old Mr. Turbeville, a citizen of this county who lived near Mt. Camel. He died in the western part of North Carolina while on a visit to his sons. He was much thought of in this county.

☞ President Buford of the Richmond and Danville Road is on a visit to our town. Col Buford is one of the most energetic railroadists in the South.

☞ There is an encampment of State troops near Company Shops.

Richmond in 1814.

From our own Correspondent.

An old semi-weekly newspaper called the "Virginia Patriot," and published in Richmond, Va, by Augustine Davis, in 1814, has been handed us by an old friend in Milton. The paper is about the size of an old red silk handkerchief, the sort our grandams used to carry to country meetin'. The reading matter is mostly made up of Execution Laws and acts passed by the Virginia Legislature, as also a "Message" from Governor Hawkins, of North Carolina. The only word of editorial is an article, double leaded, from "a stockholder" "to the stockholders of the Farmers' Bank, and of the Bank of Virginia." The few advertisements we notice are as follows: Robert Pollard, who lived near the Basin on Cary street, wanted to hire wagons to load to the Potomac creek; William Anderson wanted to hire for a term of from four to seven years a "considerable number of negro boys and girls." The boys from 8 to 15 years old, and the girls from 8 to 12. Where any person hire 8 or 10 Mr. Anderson wouldn't object to taking an old man or woman to act as guardian to the young negroes and do some light work; stolen from "this office" a small tenant saw, and a pair of spectacles and cases; a reward of three dollars offered; Henry Huxford, who lived "opposite the Virginia Inn," respectfully informed Printers and others that he kept constantly on hand the Best Printing Ink; Deborah W. Pleasants, administratrix of Samuel Pleasants, dec'd would sell on Tuesday, the 13th of December, 1814, at the office of the "Virginia Argus," all the Printing Materials and stock in trade of Samuel Pleasants, dec'd, late printer of that paper, including the Establishment itself; and the next day the dwelling house and all the household furniture and perishable property of the late printer, Samuel Pleasants, would be sold at Public auction. We send you this transcript of old times in Virginia knowing it will be of interest to a great many.

1st Dispatch to my Friends!

"Old Rip Van Winkle"—the standing Candidate—at Smith's declared himself the candidate of the Democratic and Conservative Convention of Orange for State Senator. Claimed he was not hann'd, and could take his seat if elected, as he had not given voluntary "aid and comfort to the rebellion!" At Cedar Grove he said "some said he was the nominee of the Democratic and Conservative Convention, but that he was an Independent candidate. This, my friends was what he said, in substance.

An old frame house with meadows wide,
And sweet with clover on each side;
A bright-eyed boy, who looks from out
The door with woodbine wreathed about,
And wishes his one thought all day:
"Oh! if I could but fly away
From this dull spot the world to see,
How happy, happy, happy,
How happy I should be!"

Amid the city's constant din,
A man, who round the world has been,
Who 'mid the tumult and the throng,
Is thinking, thinking all day long:
"Oh! could I only tread once more
The field-path to the farmhouse door,
The old green meadow could I see,
How happy, happy, happy,
How happy I should be!"

Spice.

A lady of Cincinnati, not yet fifty years of age, having buried eight husbands, is about to try her hand in the ninth. Life insurance companies decline to take a risk on his life.

In Alaska, if a native murders his wife, her relatives won't be satisfied until he gives them a lot of blankets. They think a wife is worth fifteen blankets in the summer, and twenty in the winter.

An old farmer says the best way for a young city chap who wants to become an agriculturalist is to hire out to some farmer for a couple of years, and then marry a girl that knows how to raise chickens and make pantaloons.

An incident in a railway car. Monster—"I'm afraid I'm sitting on your crinoline, ma'am." Affable Young Lady—"Oh, never mind, sir, it's of no consequence, you can't hurt it." Monster—"No ma'am it's not that but the confounded thing hurts me."

O'Connell, in addressing a jury, having exhausted every ordinary epithet of abuse stopped for a word, and then added, "This ungrateous ruffian." When afterward asked by his friends the meaning of the word, he confessed he did not know, but said, "he thought it sounded well."

If four dogs, with sixteen legs, can catch twenty nine rabbits, with eighty seven legs, in forty four minutes, how many legs must the same rabbits have to get away from eight dogs, with thirty two legs, in seventeen minutes and a half? We have seen sums in books nearly as sensible as this.

A certain reverened speaker in the country, preaching a very dull sermon to a congregation not used to him, many of them slunk out of the church, one after another, before the sermon was ended. "Truly," said a gentleman present, "this learned doctor has made a very moving discourse."

A man having been brought before a Dutch justice of the peace in Albany county on a charge of having four wives, the astounded magistrate exclaimed: "You let dat man go. If he lifs mit four wifes he has punishment enough. I lifs mit only von, and dat's more'n I can stband!"

A schoolmaster advertising for an usher who could teach the classes as far as "Homer and Virgil," received an answer from a man who said, "He did not know where Virgil and Homer lived, but as his friends lived in London, he had no objection to go to Hampstead, Kennington, or Brentford, at furthest."

We know a minister who was generally able to keep his congregation wide awake, but who, on one occasion—it was a sultry summer day—observed numbers of them asleep. He resolved to nip the evil practice in the bud. So taking a good survey of the scene before and around him, he exclaimed, "I saw an advertisement last week for five hundred sleepers for a railroad. I think I could supply it at least fifty, and recommend them as good and sound." It is perhaps needless to add that the supply instantly vanished.

"Why," said Miss Anna Dickinson, on one occasion, stepping forward to the footlights and commencing a lecture with a lofty flight of eloquence, "Why was I born?" She paused, and a thrill ran through the audience. Again the rich tones of the winsome woman rolled over the expectant people as she repeated the question, "Why was I born?" And again she paused, that the due impression might be made upon her hearers before she answered her own question. "Why was I born?" she asked once more, in a touching and almost painful accent, when a wicked boy in the gallery shouted, "I give it up!"

Josh Billings says: May is the belle of the year, she has worn the belt for five thousand years. If May hadn't have been a sensible girl, she would have bin spilte long ago with poetry and stanzy. But she is an independent kritter, and don't kare one kuss for stanzy: This iz an easy month tew fall in love, our naturs are now fully thawd out after the late kold snap, and like a little melted brook, tew mix with. Oh! how precious and delightsum it iz to mix. Hive bees during this month, if yu have got sum, if not, hive sumboddy else's

PLANTATION BITTERS.

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.
Wherever it is introduced it becomes a standard article—a medicinal staple. It is to-day the best and purest tonic, and the most popular medicine in the civilized world—be sure and get the genuine. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Country Stores.
